INSPIRE AND INNOVATE/INSPIREER EN INNOVEER

CiviNovus
NPC

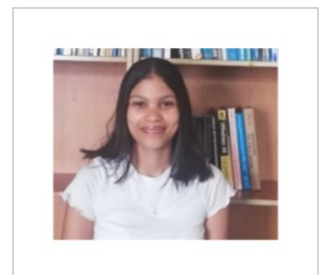

Nalene Truter en Andrea Ruiters is die verdienstelike CiviNovus-beurshouers. Dit is as gevolg van hulle uitstaande akademiese prestasies verlede jaar as tweedejaar maatskaplike werkstudente van Hugenate Kollege. Tans is hulle as derdejaars betrokke by CiviNovus en die Skool vir Sosiale Innovasie as interns om meer van sosiale innovasie te leer en om die #integritasza-beweging te bevorder.

Andrea Lynne Ruiters wrote about Integrity

Integrity is a value that most of us seem to struggle with today. When I think of what integrity means to me, I remember one of the most valuable things I was taught from a very young age. That was not to take what does not belong to me. Now when you are young and come home from school with something that belongs to your friend and your parents ask who's it is, you rarely understand what the big deal is and why you need to return it the next day.

As you get older, you tend to realize it was about much more than not just taking what does not belong to you. It also exposed you to what is right and wrong and introduced you to values of honesty and accountability. So even if you liked this toy that your friend had, you returned it because you knew that was the right thing to do. As children develop with similar values as their foundation, they hold the potential to grow up to be persons with integrity and honest leaders who do better than harm with the decisions they make.

Although life is complex and we are often faced with difficult decisions, some might even challenge our integrity. It is in moments like those where we truly discover the depth of what integrity means. There's a famous quote that reads "good things come to those who wait", I would say, good things come when good deeds are done.
